Within the CIA's counterintelligence office, there was established a unit to look into the possibility of foreign links to American dissident elements. Various reports were drawn up as a result of the work of this unit on the foreign aspects of the anti-war, youth and similar movements and the possible links to their American counterparts. Specific information was also disseminated to responsible U. S. agencies, including the FBI. In the course of this work, we maintain no record describing how any individual exercises rights guaranteed by the First Amendment.
